Art Vancouver 2020 set to be the largest yet

Vancouver, B.C. – Each year, the Vancouver International Art Fair has grown both in terms of exhibitor participation and attendance levels, and this year is set to continue these trends.

While the first year had approximately 3,000 attendees, this number has been steadily increasing. About 2,000 more people have shown up year-after-year. Last year, Art Vancouver welcomed more than 10,000 people to the exhibition.

The 6th annual event will welcome well over 100 artists and galleries to the Vancouver Convention Centre for the local art community. As the number of exhibitors grows, especially from international participation, so too has our reach to the global art community. Art Vancouver is now a destination event for those with an interest in art.

The art fair runs from Apr. 16–19 at the Vancouver Convention Centre.

About Vancouver International Art Fair

The Vancouver International Art Fair is a four-day event held April 16–19 at the Vancouver Convention Centre. More than 100 artists will display over 1,200 pieces of artwork. The art fair also includes an extensive program including the Speaker Series and panel talk, art demonstrations, guided tours and art classes.

About Art Vancouver

Art Vancouver was founded in 2015 by the Vancouver Visual Art Foundation. This local non-profit works to promote local Vancouver and British Columbia artists both within their community and across the world.
