Fueling the Next Wave of Innovation and Inclusion: Art Vancouver Shapes the Future

- The countdown is on, two weeks until Art Vancouver International Art Fair: May 4-7, 2023 at the Vancouver Convention Centre.
- internationally recognized Canadian Indigenous artist Tracy-Mae Chambers is exhibiting a One Of A Kind art installation.
- Art Vancouver holds panel discussion on art and Artificial Intelligence with industry leader, professor, and artists.

Vancouver, B.C. – In two weeks (May 4-7) Art Vancouver International Art Fair moves forward with the mission to make Vancouver a destination city for the international art community, in doing so, fueling the next wave of artistic innovation and inclusivity shaping the future of the art scene in Vancouver.

One of the highlights of this year's Art Vancouver International Art Fair will be the exhibition of a world-famous installation artwork by internationally recognized indigenous Canadian artist Tracey-Mae Chamber, previously commissioned by the United Nations. This is a rare opportunity to experience the work of one of Canada's most celebrated artists.

In addition, the fair will explore the impact of artificial intelligence on the art world, bringing together a diverse group of individuals, including industry leaders, professor and lab director, and artists, to engage in a captivating discussion on this emergent technology that is set to shape the future of art.

With more programming, broader international representation, and cultural diversity, this year's Art Vancouver International Art Fair promises to be bigger and better than any before. There's something for everyone, from art lovers, buyers, and collectors to galleries and artists alike.

Don't miss this exciting opportunity to experience the best of the international art world in the stunning setting of Vancouver. Art Vancouver International Art Fair is where the world comes to discover and collect art.

“Art Vancouver is constantly growing and exploring new ways to foster an environment where we can empower all artists to come together and strengthen a sense of unity among one another. Art brings people together, we're proud that our event can do this for its seventh edition this year.”

- Lisa Wolfen, Executive Director of Art Vancouver
